30 November 2011 will see the largest strike in the UK since 1926. Up to 3 million workers will be on strike to defend their pensions. Most schools will be shut and many other public services will be closed.

The onslaught on pensions will mean poverty in retirement for many and that attack is accompanied by a major assault on the rest of the welfare state. This is a battle over what sort of society we want to live in. It is a battle we have to win.

How can we co-operate across unions and communities in Camden to build a massive show of strength in central London?

Come to this meeting to share ideas and think about how we can work together in the lead-up to 30 November and on the day itself. And let's bring our flair and creativity to make 30 November a truly memorable event which we can build on.
